Maclean's Magazine Raises Ire of Premier Aberhart

Press is Branded as Nuisance and He Hopes There Will be No Newspaperman in Heaven

Those who listened in on Premier Aberhart's political broadcast on Sunday heard a fiery denunciation of Napier Moore, editor of Maclean's Magazine. The premier did not mention names, but in its last two issues Maclean's has published two articles based on the inquiries and observations of its editor and an interview he had with Premier Aberhart.

The magazine having a dominion-wide circulation, and even beyond the seas, these enlightening articles will doubtless convey information which would not have been conveyed through the ordinary news channels, and for this reason they seem to have aroused the ire of the premier. E. C. Manning, the provincial secretary, is termed the radio "stooge" of the premier, which apparently is not considered flattering.

The premier in speaking of his visit to Vancouver, told of meeting Mayor McGeer and how they had made it up after being political enemies in the Alberta provincial election campaign. Of newspapers, he said they are a nuisance, and he hoped no newspapermen would be in heaven, but would find other jobs.

At times, he stated, he wished he could throw over the whole job as Premier and go out with Brother Neighbor evangelizing people. However, if we cannot do the job of putting Social Credit into effect, "you can, fire us and put someone else in," he stated.

Buy From Journal Advertisers

Readers of The Journal are urged to buy from those merchants whose advertisements are published in its columns. They believe in community development and appreciate the fact that a local weekly newspaper is a vital necessity to stimulate and maintain community interest. Usually they are the leaders in their respective lines, and worthwhile citizens.

Remember the story of the spider roaming around the shelves of a store that did not advertise, as it decided it would be a good place to spin its web undisturbed.

The Journal means something to Coleman, for it is a local industry employing local workmen who are an asset to the town. Every time wages for printing and advertising are paid to outside firms that money does not return to local circulation. In that case we both lose!

Salvation Army Brings Joy and Happiness

Christmas Entertainment Symbolizes Birth of Christ and Children Receive Presents

The first Christmas entertainment for the past few years was crowned with success. Excitement ran high as young people and parents crowded into the hall.

"Joy to the world, the Lord is come," then a prayer and the word of God. A storm of applause as Mayor Pattinson was introduced as chairman. In a few well chosen words he spoke highly of the work of the Salvation Army in the Pass, work which he felt only the Army could properly do.

The program was packed with thrills and laughter. A hush came over the audience as scenes from Bethlehem were depicted and the birth of the Christ child re-enacted. A descriptive song of triumph, "Jesus shall reign," as young people in beautifully colored costumes of all lands stood in obedience to the sovereignty of the Christ.

Then the great event of the evening. The "Xmas Special" Rattle, rattle, rattle. Nothing so ancient as reindeer and sleigh; just a ford, which was very obstinate much to the annoyance of the driver, Alf Ledieu. The end came when the car blew up only to disclose "Santa Claus" safe and sound. When order was finally restored, Santa presented each one with a bag of good things then scurried off to take Xmas cheer elsewhere.

The benediction brought to a close a most enjoyable evening and all went home happy, only wishing that Xmas came every month instead of once a year.

PRINTING

Is the Handmaiden of Achievement

No Substitute can equal it for appearance, legibility and the prestige good printing gives to any business which uses publicity to acquaint the public with its wares and services.

Printing is an art, learned only through years of experience. It stands above all other make-shift forms of printing.

Like the clothes a man wears, a good impression of a business is obtained by using good printed matter, produced under proper trade conditions by journey-men printers.

The Journal can produce anything required from the smallest visiting card to the largest poster. And you'll feel proud of printing done at this office.

Paid For Supper— After Being Charged

There is a class of roustabouts who take delight in smashing up things in a Chinese restaurant, or trying to beat their bills. An instance of this nature was threshed out before Magistrate Gresham, when three men and a woman of Coleman wisely settled out of court the cost of a turkey supper they ordered at Coleman Cafe on Christmas Eve. The party ordering refused to pay, and tore up the pay-check when it was presented to him by the proprietor, Ben Chow, at the time of purchase.

Ben told him he had better leave his coat as security, but he would not, and in the dispute over payment, Ben's shirt sleeve was torn. The excuse that customers may be under the influence of intoxicants is no reason for being insolent and refusing to pay. The offenders paid the police costs and the cost of the supper, and were allowed to go.

It is reported that others are likely to be charged with various offences during the holidays.

This restaurant also suffered at the hands of disorderly people on Christmas who mixed up salt, sugar and pepper, and stole a number of glasses. Others during the rush of a supper dance interval, sneaked out without paying for their "eats." This is very small and petty and puts offenders in the class of "mighty small potatoes."

ADVERTISEMENTS of Leading Merchants will be found in this paper.

Will He Again Stand for Mayoralty?

MAYOR PATTINSON informed The Journal in reply to the question that it was entirely up to the people. He has served as mayor for four years, and councillor for many more years, and during his term as mayor has effected many economies for the ratepayers, notably in a very substantial reduction of light and water rates. Public improvements speak for themselves. Though not committing himself to stand for re-election, it is believed that if he feels he has a good measure of support for his progressive policy in improvements, he may consent to nomination. "But," he states, "it is no use trying to advance the town's interests unless there is support for such."

Mayor Pattinson has served the town well, and there is a town's business.

Canadians Easy Victory Over Monarchs

8-1 Score Brings Coleman to Total of 18 Points in League—Play at Lethbridge Saturday.

Gaining their easiest victory to date Coleman triumphed over the Medicine Hat Monarchs last night by an 8-1 score before 300 fans. The first two periods proved to be the most listless of the season. Only in the third were the fans given something to enthuse over, Coleman scoring five times against one lone counter for the Hat.

The game proved conclusively that if the hockey committee expect to hold the interest of the fans the will have to bring in strong teams for exhibitions.

Goal scorers for Coleman were, Fisher, 2; P. Brown, J. Kwassie, Joyce, Lopichuk, Jenkins, R. Kwassie. Craven scored for the Monarchs.

strong section of public opinion who would support his re-election, as evidenced by casual remarks made during the past year. He intends leaving shortly for the coast for a brief holiday, and stated he would give his decision before leaving, in reply to enquiries by The Journal.

If he is willing to again undertake the office, the suggestion that he be returned by acclamation might well be considered, in view of the capable manner in which he has supervised the Monarchs.

Disease and Death

Technocrats, engineers and scientists have said more than once recently that research work in the laboratories and workshops of the world have brought such a rich harvest in discoveries that the fruits of their work have far outrun man's ability to turn them to immediate use in enrichment of everyday life. This, it is said, is largely due to the lack of sufficient purchasing power.

This general premise is undoubtedly correct. Discoveries in the scientific realm during the past decade have been overwhelming in number, scope and future potentiality, and not the least interesting and important is the last-mentioned. For, experience shows that every new discovery opens up wide vistas for future research, paving the way for further discoveries and yielding visions of more and greater uses which the earlier experiments can be made to yield for the comfort and welfare of humanity. There is, at any rate at present, no cul de sac in the scientific field.

Not only is there no apparent terminal, but the more the scientist and research worker reveals, the more he is assured that he knows very little, that so far the surface has been barely scratched, and that the realms yet to uncover and conquer are almost limitless. The finite knowledge of the present points far into the infinite with inexhaustible treasures yet to find.

While this is true in all fields of scientific discovery, in no sphere is it more true than in the realm of medical science. Medical science and surgical skill have made tremendous and important advances in the past few years, but while much has been learned, while many new and valuable methods of preventing, curbing and eradicating disease have been discovered and pressed into service for the alleviation of suffering and prolongation of life, just about enough has been accomplished to be accomplished in the next few years, provided the work that is now being prosecuted with vigor and enthusiasm is not subjected to some unforeseen setback.

Until quite recently scientists in the medical and surgical fields have been chiefly concerned with perfection of technique in applying known methods for control and eradication of disease, with preventive and safeguarding devices and practices, with the search for cures for the most prevalent killers, such as heart disease and cancer and with the development of palliatives for pain.

In all these fields remarkable work has been done as is easily demonstrable in the case of tuberculosis. The progress that has been made in dealing with this and other diseases, in the prevention of loss of life in maternity and in the protection of children in the first few months of life, even since the Great War, has resulted in increasing the span of life expectancy, though, to date, this is principally due to the savings that have been made in infant mortality.

However, it appears that we may be upon the threshold of further discoveries that will benefit mankind in the later years of life's span. A vigorous drive is being made by science against those diseases which are taking heavy toll in middle life and old age, and more especially is the hunt for an antidote to that great and painful scourge, cancer, in full cry.

While still in the experimental stages, much more will be learned that a specific cure for cancer has been uncovered. It has been demonstrated that at least this new remedy has robbed the disease of some of its attendant pain and there are hopes that it may turn out to be the long-sought cure. It should be pointed out, however, lest disappointment ensue, that the efficacy of encol as a definite cure remains to be proven.

Experimentation with encol, so far, is confined to a two year period and eminent practitioners declare that another three years must elapse before its success or failure can be pronounced.

While the object of all this work is to prolong the span of human life, medical science is not satisfied with such great achievements as research has already yielded, but is looking farther ahead, even to the extent of endeavoring to lift the veil which shrouds the mysteries of life and death.

Experiments along this line have yielded extraordinary results. Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute, for example, has kept a chicken's heart alive, apart from the body, for 24 years and this scientist recently predicted the possibility of suspending human life and starting it again several centuries later. Such experiments open up a vista of fascinating possibilities, but this same authority, while confident of great advances in the future expresses his firm conviction that "there is no hope of ever conquering senescence and death," though admitting the possibility of suppressing disease entirely in the future.

In other words man may conquer disease, but he will not be given dominion over natural decay and eventual death, in the opinion of this noted savant.

Victim Of Science

Inoculation Slip Causes Death Of Assistant In Laboratory

Medical science claimed the life of Anna Pabel, young laboratory assistant at the National Institute of Health, who contracted meningitis in line of duty.

Miss Pabel, an experienced technician and co-author of several scientific articles, was inoculating an animal with meningitis culture on December 17, when the animal moved and some of the culture squirted into her eye.

All praise to the hen. She was the first to provide a sanitary covering for her product.

New Zealand High Commissioner Was Once London Constable

The life story of the new high commissioner for New Zealand in England reads like one of those early tales of men who went out to the colonies and made good. It is a story with a Henty touch.

William C. Jordan is going back in some triumph to London, the city of his humble birth, a city whose streets he once walked—in blue. Mr. Jordan has been alternately coachman, postal clerk and police constable. In 1904 he migrated to New Zealand and tried farming, then business. In 1912 he became M.P. for Manakau, and was president of the New Zealand Labor Party for 10 years.

Mr. Jordan's story is as good an argument for democracy as we have run across for some time.—Hamilton Herald.

Trans-Atlantic Air Service

1936 To Inaugurate Biggest Advance In History Of Flying

The Santa Maria will take wing this year.

Trans-Atlantic transport service by airplane will be in the making in the next summer flight of an air-liner across the ocean over which Christopher Columbus sailed his flagship almost 450 years ago.

With the projected voyage will come fresh international races for markets as the world's air routes become trade routes.

This year, say air transport companies, will be the biggest in the history of flying since the Wright brothers lifted their kite-like, spoked contraption off the sands at Kitty Hawk in 1901.

A 25-ton flying boat of Pan-American Airways will ease out over the Atlantic under the impetus of four roaring motors to plot the course of the future trans-Atlantic air voyager.

American airplanes in the transport field already are prepared to inaugurate airmail and passenger service.

The routes are not the problem. It is competition. United States aviation on the Atlantic meets the challenge of those nations which will be United States neighbors when the service gets underway.

The United States does not "nationalize"—subsidize heavily—its commercial air fleets. In place of that, American industry and businessmen have effected a "commercial nationalization."

The one trans-oceanic air transport company of which the United States boasts is financed jointly by widespread American industrial and business interests.

Its flying boats were built behind locked doors. The secrets of their construction have not been divulged.

Although thumbs were turned down on trading of patents with other nations' air fleets, trans-Atlantic fleets will be of necessity the result of co-operative effort. Otherwise ports of entry would be barred.

Charting flights probably will start about mid-year, inauguration of airmail service is likely before 1936 closes, and carrying of passengers soon will follow, aviation leaders predict.

Certified Grades Of Crested Wheat Grass Are Available

Work at the Dominion Forage Crops Laboratory at Saskatoon during the month of November, 1935, was largely confined to purchasing seed supplies for use in connection with the various projects of grass development to be undertaken in the spring of 1936 under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act. Moderate quantities of registered and certified grades of crested wheat grass are available, but at a relatively high price. There are adequate supplies of seed of other grasses and legumes available.

Was Remarkable Figure

Venezuela's Late President Will Be Hard To Replace

The most powerful dictator in South America is dead. With the passing of Juan Vicente Gomez, President of Venezuela, there vanishes from the scene one of the most remarkable figures of contemporary politics. Born a cattleman, he joined Cipriano Castro in a revolution which was successful and which put the beetle-browed little Castro in the presidential chair. Gomez was content to remain his chief aide, but he commanded the army and he was in reality the power behind the throne. When C. went away on leave of absence in 1908 he signed his own dismissal, for Gomez warned him not to return, pretending to be much concerned about rumors of plots against Castro's life!

Ever since then Gomez has ruled Venezuela with an iron hand, smashing ruthlessly any attempt against his power, giving the country a settled policy, building up its finances—Venezuela is the only nation in the world without a nickel of external debt—and making things attractive for foreign capital, so that British investment in the country increased from $45,550,000 to $131,860,980 in the four-year period prior to depression, and in 1933 the value of her exports was five times that of her imports.

The materialist dictator disliked crowds, and seldom went to the capital, Caracas, preferring to live a lonely and secluded life on his country estate. Many Venezuelans have never seen him. But he had his ear to the ground 24 hours a day, and he knew everything that was going on. He gave his country a long period of peace, but of course he made hosts of enemies, for his methods were simple but drastic. Those he could catch, he shot; those who could escape from the country remained in exile. But in losing Gomez Venezuela has lost a ruler it will be extremely difficult to replace.—Montreal Star.

Canned Blood

Weird Discovery Listed As Major Accomplishment Of 1935

The "canned" blood was listed by professional discovery as medicine's foremost accomplishment of 1935.

A process of taking blood from the bodies of the dead and preserving it to save other lives through transfusions was placed first in a "year book of fame" compiled for the Associated Press by Dr. Morris Fishkin, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Russian doctors and chemists deserved first rank for developing the "canning" method and using it successfully in more than 1,000 cases, the editor said.

Snow Traps Golden Eagle

Unable To Rise From Ground After Diving For Rabbit

A giant golden eagle was killed near Priddy, Alta., when it was unable to take off in soft snow after diving for a rabbit. Clayton Tompkins, of Calgary, shot the bird as it thrashed around in the drifts. The eagle had a wing spread of seven feet, two inches.

In preparation for a take-off, the eagle must spring into the air suddenly for the wings to clear the ground. The deep, soft snow prevented the preliminary jump and each successive effort served only to heighten the bird's predicament.

Should Stand By League

The business of this country says the Manchester Guardian is to stand with the members of the League, confirming their loyalty, giving them all the evidence that it can of its friendship—both in this and in a broader field, for we ought to turn to good use the new international unity—and maintaining patiently the principle that the League must hold on until justice is done.

Sending Boys To Queensland

Arrangements are being made to send 10 Boy Scouts to Queensland every month from Great Britain. The announcement was made by the Settlers' League. In London negotiations are still in progress with federal government for financial assistance, under the settlers' agreement, for the boys' passages to Queensland. On arrival, the boys will be given occupations, chiefly in farming.

Honey Export Heavy

Saskatchewan Shipped Seven Tons To Britain Last Year

Production of honey in Saskatchewan during the past year showed an increase of 59 per cent. over 1934, according to figures from the department of agriculture. The total yield was 1,024,000 pounds. The large increase was due to the increased number of bee keepers and to the increased number of bee colonies. Export of Saskatchewan honey to Great Britain this year amounted to seven tons.

Tariff Reform And Monetary Policies To Receive Attention

Ottawa.—Tariff reform and monetary policies will figure largely in government deliberations during the next month or until Finance Minister Charles Dunning brings down his budget.

While the Liberal platform does not commit the party to any radical departures there will be several advocates of ad hoc monetary reform, lower interest rates and wider distribution of purchasing power, within the ranks. Notable among these is Mayor Gerry McGeer of Vancouver.

One immediate aim of the government is a balanced budget but it is not considered Mr. Dunning will attempt to achieve this in one year. A deficit on all accounts of more than $100,000,000 is anticipated for the current year.

It is considered certain that one of the first measures to be presented to parliament will be an act to amend the Bank of Canada Act for the purpose of transforming that institution into a publicly owned utility.

A call will go out shortly for the gathering in Ottawa of Dominion-provincial committees, appointed at the December conference, to deal with the British North America Act, financial relations between Dominion and provinces, agriculture and mining. Early in the session Mackenzie King is expected to present a resolution or bill to parliament for the purpose of giving definitely the Dominion's stand toward titles.

Building Many Vessels

Britain Constructing Naval Units And Boats For Merchant Marine

London.—Something more than the traditional New Year optimism characterizes the feeling of the hard-hit industrial areas on the northeastern coast of Great Britain.

On the Tyne nine naval units are under construction, involving an expenditure of approximately $20,000,000. More than 30 vessels are also being built for the merchant marine.

Vickers-Armstrongs, Limited, have just secured a $6,000,000 order for the construction of locomotives. Their shipyard workers have been employed last month, though 22,000 remain unemployed. The company has vast works at Barrow-in-Furness and Newcastle-on-Tyne. Officials say the recovery in construction is regarded as "only comparative."

Ottawa Levee

Many Attend Governor-General's Reception On New Year's Day

Ottawa.—Nearly 1,000 men attended the governor-general's levee to shake hands with Baron Tweedsmuir and wish him a happy New Year. The most largely attended levee of recent years, it was held in the Hall of Fame of the parliament building beginning shortly after noon.

Next to the governor-general's levee, the largest receptions were those held by Premier Mackenzie King at Laurier House in the afternoon and that of Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett, in his hotel at the same time. Since foreign countries celebrate New Year's Eve, it had been their custom also to hold their receptions in the afternoon but the diplomatic corps' reception were in the forenoon.

Taking No Chances

Cairo.—Egypt is taking special precautions against a gas attack in case of war here, it was revealed when the finance minister approved an appropriation of $125,000 to buy gas masks.

Great Britain And France Working Out Joint Tactical Plans

London.—Official quarters reported naval, military and air attaches of Great Britain and France are working out joint tactical plans "in case of an emergency."

Some newspapers here have reported details of a purported British plan to aid France in case of an attack on the continent. Informed observers said details of the negotiations could not yet be divulged, however.

It was emphasized in official

Imperial Airways Crash

Nine Passengers And Three Members Of Crew Perish

London.—Hope was abandoned for 12 persons lost in the Mediterranean crash of the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum.

Crane-equipped tugs worked in 13 fathoms of water off Alexandria, Egypt, attempting to raise the liner and find the bodies of the victims.

The nine passengers and three members of the crew plunged with the plane beneath the sea a few minutes short of an Alexandria landing, apparently with all three motors dead. The only survivor, Pilot Vernon Gorry Wilson, was in a critical condition aboard H.M.S. Brilliant, which took him from the water.

Two women were among the passengers, all but two of whom were Britons. One was an Italian and one an American.

Pilot Wilson, who was in the water for five hours before the Brilliant found him, was too weak to be questioned as to the cause of the tragedy, worst Imperial Airways accident in two years.

The admiralty, however, said in a statement, "The crash apparently was due to all three engines cutting out."

Imperial Airways asserted: "Imperial Airways deeply regrets the tragedy of the City of Khartoum, flying from Athens to Alexandria, came down at sea about 1½ miles off Alexandria and was lost. Hope must now be abandoned for there being any other survivors."

The wreckage is salvaged and full inquiries made, the cause of the accident cannot be ascertained."

Ottawa Plans Check Up

Commission Expected To Make Examination Of Relief Rolls

Ottawa, Ont.—Hopes of the government, apart from trade revival, for a lessening of the costs of unemployment relief this year are centred in the unemployment relief commission shortly to be announced. The cabinet is now engaged in selecting the personnel of the commission. It is hoped through the commission to obtain a much greater degree of co-operation between all the agencies now dealing with the unemployed; to remove duplicative services and to make government administration more efficient and less costly.

As the custodian of Dominion relief funds, the commission will be expected to launch, forthwith, a strict examination of relief rolls and expenditures throughout the country. Auditors and examiners will be employed to make sure that money being expended by municipalities and provinces are being spent properly.

Departments Will Be Added

Two New Branches For Training Of Mounted Police

Ottawa.—Two departments will be added shortly to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to place the force on a footing with Scotland Yard and the American government's G-Men, it was indicated by Sir James MacBrien, commissioner.

One branch will deal with scientific crime detection, featuring ballistic, photographic and pathological instruments. The co-operation of some universities will be sought in establishment of this branch.

A training school for constables also will be established to instruct the men in crime detection, police duties and criminal law.

Mayor Of Toronto

Sam McBride Is Elected To Chief Magistrate's Office

Toronto.—Sam McBride, mayor of Toronto in 1928 and 1929, was returned to the chief magistrate's office over two opponents in the civic elections.

Vanquished were James Simpson, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation mayor of 1935, and former Alderman Harry W. Hunt, owner of a chain of confectionery stores. Complete returns from the city's 763 subdivisions gave McBride 48,723 votes; Hunt 45,036; and Simpson 32,636.

Returns showed Ralph C. Day was high man in the vote for board of control, ensuring his return to office for another term. W. J. Wadsworth and W. D. Robbins, both members of last year's board of control, also were voted back into office, while former Controller George Ramsden, who lost out in the mayoralty election in 1935, eased into the post of board of control left open by Mayor-elect McBride's step up. Mr. McBride was a controller in 1935.

Toronto's mayor-elect is the dean of city council. He was elected alderman for the west in 1905 and represented that district, the main business section of the city, until 1916. He served on board of control in 1918, 1919, 1926 and from 1932 to 1935.

Pleased With Acclamation

Federal Minister Of Finance Expresses Thanks At Banquet

Charlottetown.—Minister of Finance C. A. Dunning expressed thanks for the acclamation that will send him to the House of Commons as one of Queen's county's two representatives.

His gratitude was voiced at a banquet of the Queen's County Liberal Association a few hours after nomination for the Queen's by-election had closed with only Mr. Dunning's papers on file. Conservatives had decided not to contest the seat thrown open when J. J. Larabee resigned so the minister could enter parliament.

"I'll try to discharge my functions of judge in deciding what is justice for Prince Edward Island," Mr. Dunning said, "and I think it will be justice tempered with a measure of generosity."

Want Basic Dividends

Reported Demand Will Be Made By Delegation To Alberta Government

Edmonton.—Demands will be made by a large delegation soon after the session of the Alberta house opens on Feb. 6 for payment of the $25 dividend which, it is felt, was promised by Premier Abernethy during the provincial election campaign, says A. S. Shandro, organizer for the Alberta Basic Dividends Association.

"We are preparing to organize locals all over the province to carry on the work," says Mr. Shandro.

Starts Half-Holidays

Yorkton, Sask.—From New Year's Day until the end of August, Wednesday afternoons will be holidays for business houses and their employees in this city. At a council meeting city fathers passed this holiday reading of a bylaw putting this holiday in effect. Only one member of the council voted against it.

WHEN HOARE RETURNED TO FACE THE "MUSIC."

Looking somewhat weary after his sudden rush from Switzerland to face the British people and explain his part in the defunct Anglo-Franco Peace proposals, we see Sir Samuel Hoare with Lady Hoare at Croydon Aerodrome, London. During his short holiday, Sir Samuel injured his nose, and we see the injured member covered with sticking plaster.

Search For Ellsworth

Steamship Is Sent By British And Australian Governments

Dunedin, New Zealand.—A steamship dispatched by the British and Australian governments sailed for the Antarctic to search for Lincoln Ellsworth, United States explorer, who has been missing for more than a month, and his Canadian pilot. Two aeroplanes were aboard the vessel, Discovery II, along with large supplies of food and medicine. The 1,036-ton ship will go to the Bay of Whales, in the Ross sea.

If Ellsworth and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, of Winnipeg, have not been found by then, the two aeroplanes aboard the Discovery II will be used for searching flights.

Ends Long Railway Service

C.N. Engineer Completes 47 Years Without Demerit Mark

Edmonton.—When Tom Taylor, western Canadian National Railways engineer, brought in C.N.R. eastbound continental flyer No. 2 from Edmonton Dec. 30 he ended 47 years in railway work—nearly half a century without mishap or demerit mark.

Engineer Taylor, as fit to-day as at 30, still can pass the stringent medical examination required for railwaymen. He steps down from his cab because of the retirement rule for railway employees which says they cannot work after 65.

Automobile Mortality

Chicago.—Safety campaigns designed to reduce the 1936 automobile mortality total on United States highways by 35 per cent, got away to a poor start on New Year's Day. Statistics showed at least 93 persons died in automobile accidents compared with 98 on Jan. 1, 1935, or a drop of slightly better than five per cent. The figures were incomplete and unofficial.

Huge Sum Spent

Washington.—While President Roosevelt shaped his spending program for the future, a year-end recapitulation showed the United States new deal had already spent or loaned more than $16,000,000,000 for relief and recovery.

U. S. President Condemns Nations Who Prosecute War

Washington.—In sharp language, President Roosevelt made his annual message into a call upon congress to protect the United States against foreign autocrats bent upon war and against such autocrats at home as seek to "gang up" on the people's liberties.

Delivering the historic outline on the "state of the union" in the unusual glitter of a specially assembled night session, the president urged that the country be kept clear of war by a "well ordered neutrality" and an "adequate national defense."

He spoke in ringing terms before a joint session of the senate and the house of representatives—and before the nation through the medium of a nation-wide broadcast—as he condemned those nations "which to-day must bear the primary responsibility for jeopardizing world peace."

"Those who seek selfish power," he declared, have reverted to the law of the sword "or to the fantastic conception that they and they alone are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all others must be subject to them."

He found encouragement in the "good neighbor" policy existing among the 21 American republics and the Dominion of Canada. The spirit of understanding in the new world, he said, was greater than at any time in the four and a half centuries of modern civilization.

He commended that the United States and the rest of the Americas, through a well ordered neutrality, must do nothing to encourage contents of aggression in other parts of the world.

The president pointed out that the United States is presently following a two-fold neutrality policy towards all countries which engage in wars not of immediate concern to the Americas. He outlined the policy in these words:

"We decline to encourage the prosecution of war by permitting belligerents to obtain arm ammunition or implements of war... we seek to discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

He voiced the hope that congress will co-operate in order that these objectives may be carried forward. The present neutrality bill expires Feb. 29. "Plans are afoot for another to take its place."

"I recognize that the leadership of foreign peoples, who, he said, seem bent upon war, not upon peace. He accused them of going counter to the wishes of peoples which have no access to a change in rulers. And he pointedly added:

"I recognize that these words, which I have chosen with deliberation, will not prove popular in any nation which chooses to fit this shoe to its foot."

In a war-threatened world, he continued, the United States has sought to play the part of the "good neighbor," discourage mounting armaments, and encourage the peaceful solution of disputes among all nations.

"We have sought by every legitimate means to exert our moral influence against repression, discrimination, intolerance and autocracy and in favor of freedom of expression, equality before the law, religious tolerance and popular rule."

"In the new commerce we have undertaken to encourage a more reasonable interchange of the world's goods. In the field of international finance, we have, so far as we are concerned, put an end to dollar-diplomacy, money-grabbing and speculation by the greedy of the powerful and rich, at the expense of the small and the poor."

The president divided the nations into two categories—those bent upon peace and those pursuing a policy of aggression. Of the latter he said:

"Within those other nations—those which today must bear the primary responsibility for jeopardizing world peace—what hope lies?" he asked. "To ray the least there are grounds for pessimism. It is idle for us or for others to preach that the masses of the people who constitute those nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression, are out of sympathy with their rulers, that they are allowed no opportunity to express themselves, that they would change things if they could."

"That unfortunately is not so clear. It might be true that the masses of the people in those nations would change the policies of their governments if they could be allowed full freedom and access to the processes of democratic government as we understand them. But they do not have that access. Lacking it, they follow blindly and fervently the lead of those who seek autocratic power."

"Nations seeking expansion, seeking rectification of injustices springing from former wars, or seeking outlets for trade, for population or even for their own peaceful contributions to the progress of civilization, fail to demonstrate that patience necessary to obtain reasonable and legitimate objectives by peaceful negotiation or by an appeal to their finer instincts of world justice."

"They have therefore impatiently reverted to the old belief in the law of the sword, or to the fantastic conception that they and they alone, are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all the others among the billion and a half of human beings must and shall learn from and be subject to them."

Commissioner For Palestine

London.—The reappointment of Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchop as high commissioner for Palestine and Transjordan was announced by colonial secretary J. H. Thomas. Sir Arthur, who assumed his duties in 1931, thus will serve a second term.

Italy Calling For More Volunteers For Air Service

Rome.—Italy called for 5,700 volunteers for her air service in what Fascists said was the "greatest aerial enlistment in history."

The air ministry asked for 1,500 pilots and 4,200 base experts.

Italy has officially expressed regret for the bombardment of a Swedish Red Cross unit, but warned Sweden against "tendentious versions of the incident," it was disclosed.

New and undisclosed "scientific weapons" may be pressed into Italy's fight against Ethiopia, a reliable source said.

Italy has a vast quantity of these weapons which she has been reluctant to use, the informant said. But Ethiopia war practices may make it necessary to bring the new instrument into play, he asserted.

A violent Fascist campaign from the air, some observers predicted, might come as "punishment" for the alleged decapitation by Ethiopian warriors of Italian flyers.

It was disclosed the bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit was in retaliation for the alleged decapitation of a pilot.

(An Ethiopian communiqué said 28 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the air raid.)

Desays, Ethiopia.—Six Italian flyers were killed when Ethiopian sharpshooters brought down two enemy planes on the northern front, official announcement asserted here.

The reports roused fear in some quarters of further attacks against Red Cross hospitals and first aid stations. It was recalled here Italian authorities had asserted the bombardment which wrecked the Swedish ambulance unit on the southeastern front near Dolo was in direct retaliation for recent beheading of two Italian pilots whose plane was brought down at Daggah Bar.

Of the two planes shot down, one was crippled by Ethiopian snipers when it flew low over Kebeta, a settlement in the Wolaita region in northwestern Ethiopia. Four airmen reportedly died in the crash. They were said to have attacked Kebeta's civil population. The flyers were burned to death in the plane.

Two other Italian airmen were reportedly killed in a plane which was forced into a crash by a tribal sharpshooter in one of the armies surrounding Makale.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

THERE ARE people in every town, Coleman included, who by their indifference evidently expect churches and parsons to live on air. Never a nicker do they give towards maintaining them, yet if marriage, baptismal or funeral services are required, they ask the church to perform these necessary services.

THIS FACT was brought home forcibly after attending a church meeting at which the report revealed that the parson's stipend was badly in arrears and no payments had been made to ordinary diocesan assessments. This particular church has more than sufficient supposedly church members to pay its running expenses twice over each year, yet the majority leave it to the faithful members to carry the load which they (the slackers) should be sharing.

IF THE churches were to put on vaudeville performances on Sunday evenings, the chances are they would be packed. But when it comes to giving something to keep the church going, a "quarter" is some money in most people's eyes. If people will not acknowledge their responsibility, they should not complain if they were denied the services of their church, for there is only one alternative for lack of support, and that is to close up shop and let the dead bury their dead.

NOT ONLY in church matters, but in town affairs, there are always those who take no part in the duties of citizenship. They are just barnacles on the community ship, taking all they can get and giving nothing in return for the privileges they enjoy. And usually they are the most vociferous in slamming those who show some enterprise and leadership in progressive steps to make a town worth living in. Such people we have no fear in offending. They understand only one language, and that is straight from the shoulder talk to bring home to them the fact that they are slackers, picking up the cherries and plums which they take no part in providing.

COLEMAN CANADIANS met players worthy of their steel blades last Saturday night when Brandon team gave them the stiffest game so far this season. The locals need this if they are not to lapse into an atmosphere of contentment in beating teams in the "Crow" league. There is no credit in building up a good team unless they are able to hold their own with players of even or better calibre. There is no more exciting game than ice hockey, and Coleman's team has done much to place it on the sports map. The stiffer the rivalry, the more honor in winning.

NEITHER should the junior team be overlooked. The young players deserve a fair share of public support and in their class provide equally as good sport as their older brethren on the ice. The present senior team was re-organized in the season 1928-29 from plain "home-brews" whose hockey experience was gained here, and it took them a few years to develop the team to qualify for the senior ranks. Just remember that when the juniors announce a game, and encourage them by your attendance.

REPEATEDLY The Journal has voiced the sentiments of quite a large section of public opinion in Coleman that the town is inadequately policed, particularly in the night hours when most needed. Many complaints of noises and brawls on the streets are well founded, and it is very distasteful for law-abiding citizens to be subjected to frequent annoyance of obscene language and drunks. Why not arrange with the R. C. M. P. to perform this duty, as other towns have done with satisfactory results? A local policeman hesitates to incur enmity and the result is that offences are at times overlooked or soft-peddled. The mounted police not being under local government, can perform their duties impartially, and would have a good effect in maintaining respect for the law which a local policeman, owing to intimacy with the local population, cannot.

"LIFE doesn't give its rewards to the whiners and quitters --it saves them for those who face difficulties with head up, heart bold, and spirit undaunted."--From "A Depression Bride" in Canadian Home Journal."

FATHER Aberhart's love for newspapermen is not improving. On Sunday he said he hoped there would be no newspapermen in heaven and that they would get other jobs. Even at that we would imagine there would be more fun in hell than in heaven if he is to rule the roost like he does the Prophetic Bible Institute and the Legislature.

ENQUIRY into rumors of this and that company negotiating for the purchase of business blocks in town fails to give the slightest substantiation to the rumors. Apparently another of those stories that originated down by the rail road track or around the wash-house. Neither the mayor or town clerk have any information of it.

BURIED ALIVE

One of the fiendish tortures of the middle ages was the act of burying people alive.

Nature buried the whole village of Verde Cocha last week in Ecuador. Ain't nature grand!

It has been said recently that if a man makes a happy marriage he becomes an optimist, if an unfortunate one he becomes a philosopher.

When nature smiles and behaves normally, responding when man nudges or presses the D-switches, man says and means it: "Ain't nature grand!"

When dust storms move his farm or floods wipe out his crops, or earthquakes level his buildings or plague take his children, he says, "What can't be cured must be endured," thus giving one evidence that nature compensates for what she takes away. Man has been made of stern enough stuff that when knocked down he struggles to his feet and marches on.

Job had his flocks and crops and servants and children taken and when urged by his wife to curse God and die, he said: "You speak like a senseless woman. We accept prosperity from God, shall we not also accept misfortune?"

But in a world where there is a purpose for heat and a purpose for cold and a purpose for all of the parts of life contributing to man's well-being it would seem that man's experience here must be for a purpose.

Was the purpose for which those buried by the landslide in Ecuador fulfilled?

It all goes to show you (as the boys say) that this life is a relatively unimportant though purposeful incident in a greater life—continuous after bodies are useless.

Among the attractions of Santiago, Chile, is one of the finest boulevards in the world—the Alameda de las Delicias. Broad and tree-lined, it runs for two miles through the centre of the city. Between the driveways are luxurious flower gardens and statues in honor of famous Chileans.

"The Mill on the Floss," at Gainsborough, Eng., which was immortalized by George Eliot, was burned late in August by its owner as "an industrial slum dangerous to life."

Cultivate a personal interest in the store ads—for that will be merely an important way of safeguarding your purse from the little leaks that occur through unwise buying.

Fire Destroyed Home

For the first time in a year, the fire brigade turned out on Tuesday at 7 p. m. to extinguish a fire which almost destroyed the dwelling of Rene Steiner, International mine worker, on Fourth street east, near the home of D. Gillespie. He had banked the fire and left the house, and the stove pipe running through the wooden partition, ignited it. The contents were destroyed, and the house badly damaged, very little being left. The brigade had water turned on in eight minutes from the time of the alarm being turned in.

Chisellers Are a Menace

Trade-unionism frowns on "chisellers." A real trade unionist believes in live and let live, and does not shop here, there and everywhere to see where he can "chisel" on other workmen and tradesmen. It is surprising the time and trouble some will go to to save a few cents, overlooking the fact if they were "chiselled" they would think it atrocious.

Under the expert workmanship of Lieutenants Pierce and Fitch the Salvation Army hall has been thoroughly renovated. Walls and ceiling have been kalsomined and the woodwork has been grained a light oak color. Christmas decorations delighted the crowd present at the Christmas concert. Footlights of red, blue and yellow colors matching perfectly the various colored costumes worn by the artists during the program. A new curtain stretched across the newly constructed stage blended well with the quiet setting of the other decorations. An imitation fire place holding an artificial fire gave an air of warmth to the proceedings.

Canada's First Railroad

Centenary Will Be Celebrated In July Of This Year

Canada is shortly to celebrate yet another centenary, that of the opening of the first railroad in the Dominion. It covered 16 miles and bore the dignified title of the Champlain St. Lawrence Railroad. A charter for the construction of the line was granted in 1832, and the work began three years later. Opened by Lord Gosport on July 21st, 1836, the line disported only stage, but in 1837 the owners brought an engine—which they called "Kitten"—and an engine-driver from England, and a speed of 20 miles an hour was achieved. Later, further railroad construction was undertaken, and now the Dominion has one of the most extensive railway systems in the world.—Empire Review, London.

New Cunard White Star Liner

"Queen Mary" Has Novel Illumination Never Before Seen On Any Vessel

The Cunard White Star liner "Queen Mary" will be the greatest "daylight" ship to take the seas, and will possess novel illumination schemes which have never before been incorporated in any vessel afloat.

At night the elaborate flood-lighting will transform the liner into a palace of colour, leaving a brilliant golden trail behind her as she glides swiftly across the dark seas.

But one of the principal features is the extensive use of glass throughout the ship. Natural lighting is the keynote of the passenger accommodation lounges and dining-rooms. The promenade deck is almost encased in glass which will stand any weather.

In the hull alone 2,500 square feet of glass has been used for the portables, while thousands of additional square feet, aggregating hundreds of tons, are included in the staircases and public rooms.

But there are several other things behind the idea of using so much glass. In addition to providing greater comfort for the passengers and avoiding too much artificial light there are certain hygienic considerations, and a small army of window-cleaners will be kept busy washing and polishing the thousands of panes of glass.

"Queen Mary", in fact, is a window-cleaners' paradise.

All the first-class staterooms which face the open sea are fitted with long glass sliding windows. In the main lounge there are 32 windows, each 12 feet high, and the children's playroom has five windows 12 feet high. A novel system has been used in the verandah restaurant. The ornate window-sills are actually electric radiators which maintain an even temperature.

On one side of the restaurant is a beautifully designed bandstand illuminated by ever-changing coloured lights hidden underneath.

The shopping centre is almost entirely constructed of glass. The outfitting shop has a frontage of 15 feet while many of the walls give the effect of a gigantic sheet of glass so ingeniously have the big panes been fitted together.

No One Saw Eclipse

Last One For 1935 Visible Only At South Pole

Santa kept one Christmas treat for himself, the year's last eclipse of the sun.

It was visible in no inhabited part of the world and even Mr. Claus had to scan the sky from the ice fields of the South Pole.

For a few fleeting seconds, the Antarctic was shadowed by the weird half-light of a sun reduced to a thin blazing circle. The eclipse lasted but a minute and 23 seconds from the time the moon began blotting out the sun's light until Old Sol shone full again. Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Adler Planetarium, Chicago, said it was the seventeenth eclipse of 1935—the maximum number possible in any year. It ended a series of heavenly phenomena which will not be seen again for 550 years.

Otherwise Peaceful

"I wanted to listen to Christmas carols on the radio," Anthony Seller, 61, of Chicago, explained to the judge. "I like 'em—peace on earth and that sort of thing. But my wife wanted to listen to dance music. So I hit her." He paid a $100 fine.

Royal Bank Presents Strong Annual Statement

Deposits Up $51,000,000—Marked Improvement Evident Last Year Continues

The Annual Statement of The Royal Bank of Canada reflects a very substantial growth during the year. Assets have crossed the eight hundred million dollar mark, being actually $800,919,000. Deposits show an increase slightly greater than the rather remarkable increase shown in the previous year.

Assets have increased during the year by over $42,000,000. The growth of total assets is somewhat less than the increase in deposits inasmuch as the Royal Bank has not yet indicated that demand for new loans has more than offset liquidation of slow advances carried in the depression. Call loans in Canada also increased by $2,598,033 but Call Loans abroad are down $10,690,196. As is well known, the yield on such loans in London and New York is about at the vanishing point.

Profits and Loss Account

Profits for the year amounting to $4,340,522 show a slight decrease but were sufficient to provide for $2,800,000 in dividends, $200,000 for transfer to Bank Premises account, $200,000 to be applied to the Officers' Pension Fund and $1,037,772 for Dominion and Provincial Government taxes, leaving a surplus of $102,700 to be added to the Reserves.

The Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders will be held at the Hotel of the bank in Montreal on Thursday, January 9th at 11 a.m. when it is expected that the annual report will be submitted.

Peasants Order Gas Masks

Arabs Near Jerusalem Not Taking Any Chances On War

Eighty Arab peasants from two villages outside Jerusalem have placed orders for British gas-masks with a local agent. Each mask will cost $20.

The example was started by a peasant of Beit Jallah village near Jerusalem. He bought a mask and told the agent that, if war came, it might save the lives of his three wives and eight children. If Allah decreed there should be no war, the hideous mask could hang on his wall, be sold, and so on, and so on.

"How can you divide one mask among your family of eleven?" asked the merchant.

"By the will of Allah," the Arab replied, "it shall be divided so that all have a chance of wearing it." Now 80 neighboring peasants also want gas-masks for their families.

Youngest Man In Parliament

Alberta's Social Credit Member Is Only 29 Years Old

The "baby" member of the next Canadian parliament will be Rene Pelletier, 27-year-old station agent of Falher, Alta., on the Northern Alberta Railway, 200 miles northwest of Edmonton. A Social Credit candidate, he was elected member of the House of Commons for Peace River riding in the Oct. 14 election.

Born at Falher, Que., Sept. 2, 1908, Mr. Pelletier moved to Montreal with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Z. Pelletier, when he was still a boy. He attended primary school at Montreal until 1919, when the family moved to Calgary. At 16 he was a telegrapher for the N.A.R.

Cuba is buying 100 times as much American rice as a year ago.

stantially, but is accounted for by the discontinuance of the payment of interest on a large proportion of the bank's deposits outside of Canada. It is no doubt a reflection of greatly improved business throughout the country that the growth under this heading during the past two years has been no less than 17%.

Commercial Loans Up

Commercial loans show a moderate increase of $2,038,882, which is encouraging when it is taken into consideration that general experience has not yet indicated that demand for new loans has more than offset liquidation of slow advances carried in the depression. Call loans in Canada also increased by $2,598,033 but Call Loans abroad are down $10,690,196. As is well known, the yield on such loans in London and New York is about at the vanishing point.

A PROPHETIC VISION

Golden text: Mine eyes have seen the salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all peoples. Luke 2:30, 31.

Lesson: Luke 2.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 49:6-13.

Explanations and Comments

The Birth of Jesus and the Story of Shepherds, Luke 2:1-20.

The story of the birth of Jesus as related by Matthew is in striking contrast with that of Luke. Matthew depicts Jesus as a king and at his birth the reigning Herod trembles on his throne, and the magi adore him, offering royal gifts. Luke represents Jesus as the ideal Man, and his story of the birth is full of human interest. It describes two obscure peasants journeying from their northern home in Nazareth to Bethlehem, and the exodus from the inn, placing in a manger their newborn Babe, while the first to visit them were shepherds from a neighboring plain. Human interests, however, are not merely earthly inter-meddlings of the divine with heavenly things. It is the revelation of the meaning of divine meaning and grace" (C. R. Erdman).

The Epiphany, Simon, Luke 2:25-26. Nothing is known about Simon save what is here told. He was righteous, and the exodus from the inn, placing in a manger their newborn Babe, while the first to visit them were shepherds from a neighboring plain. Human interests, however, are not merely earthly inter-meddlings of the divine with heavenly things. It is the revelation of the meaning of divine meaning and grace" (C. R. Erdman).

War Graves

International Joint Committee To Deal With Administration

Agreement to set up an international joint committee to deal with administrative questions relating to war graves was signed in Berlin on behalf of Canada by Sir Eric Phillips, British ambassador to Germany. A announcement of the agreement was made simultaneously in the United Kingdom, Germany, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Newfoundland and France.

At a conference held last October in London, attended by British, French and German representatives, it was unanimously decided to recommend establishment of a joint committee of the governments of the above-named countries. Duties of the commission would be to attend to the care of German war graves in British cemeteries in France, and of British war graves in Germany.

An agreement for this purpose, suggested at the conference, has now been completed, approved by all countries concerned, and the committee will be appointed at once.

Constitution of the new committee will be similar to that of the Anglo-French and other committees which have given the Imperial War Graves commission great co-operation and assistance in their work since the war.

Veteran Gets Hero Medal

To his collection of decorations for service, Thomas Addicot of Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, one-armed war veteran, can now add another for he has been awarded the bronze medal of the Royal Canadian Humane Society for the saving of life.

Canada's National Game

Hockey Is Now Spreading To Countries All Around The World

Hockey, Canada's chief contribution to the world of sport, is taking hold in sporting circles of countries all around the globe. In former years hockey was confined to areas where Jack Frost was depended upon to provide ice, but with the advance made in refrigeration engineering in recent years hockey is rapidly extending its boundaries irrespective of climate. It is already well established in England and on the Continent and last year made an appearance in China and Japan. Plans are now under way to build an artificial ice rink in Johannesburg, South Africa, in connection with the Empire Exhibition to be held in that city from September 15, 1936, to January 15, 1937. While the rink is only planned for the duration of the exhibition, hockey enthusiasts are considering taking it over and organizing teams from among the fairly large Canadian colonies around Johannesburg.

While Canadian players comprise a large part of the rosters of teams in England and Europe, the distance between Canada and South Africa makes the migration of players a practical impossibility. Hockey is played in all of Canada and in the past decade or so has become very popular in the United States. Spectators as well as players thrill to this speediest of games which attracts immense crowds to witness both professional and amateur contests and through the medium of radio, play-by-play descriptions of the principal matches are carried into millions of homes during the hockey season.

Auction Held Every Year

Proceeds Of Wine Sale Go To French Hospital

"Wine from grapes of an orchard provided by Philip the Good in the 15th century was sold at auction in Beaune, France, amid splendor and festivities changed little since medieval times.

Wine buyers who mingled with singing and dancing townfolk clad in old Burgundian costumes spent about $39,000 for the wine sold by the Hospital of Beaune.

Philip the Good, then Duke of Burgundy, endowed the hospital with the vineyard. The vineyard's output provide care for patients unable to pay.

The auction is held annually in the dimly-lit hall of the hospital, the bidding continuing only during the burning of a candle. Many of the finest burgundies in the world are marketed at the famous auction.

Kept Outside City Limits

King Avoided Ceremony By Not Going Through London

The London press missed a good story recently, when the King attended the state opening of Parliament. . . . and then left for his Sandringham country estate. The King left Buckingham Palace and went to Charing Cross Station—invent of Liverpool Station, the usual entraining spot. He did so to avoid passing through the city of London boundaries. In this way he avoided the traditional ceremony wherein the Lord Mayor meets the ruler at the city boundary and gives him formal permission to enter. The King may not enter London without permission first granted from the Mayor of that city.

You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your

Well-Being to Unknown
Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—its composition with "Aspirin".

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin", the most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

FLEMING'S
FOLLY
— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

A few drops from a new bottle of whiskey brought her slowly around. Sheriff Stephen stood with Deputy Hintz and the prisoner, his expression grim. Doc Slater watched Townsend, who still lay unconscious. "Sheriff, here's the bullet," it was a fendish shot at this close range. Would have killed him sure only it deflected from his belt buckle and used up some of the force. Got to leave him here a couple of hours, then move him to a bedroom. "There's one right handy on this floor, Doc," Gaines offered.

"All right. We'll go now. Move the whole lounge."

Eager hands grasped it and slowly wheeled the leather affair down a short corridor. "Gaines leaded away. When everything was arranged to the doctor's satisfaction he shook them from the room.

Link walked slowly back to the lobby. Stephen beckoned to him with a lean forefinger and a nod. Helen Hamilton sat with her head bowed by both hands, weeping softly. Buzz had the dazed look of a drunk unduly sobered by the awful consequences of his act.

"Meant that slug for you, eh, Link?"

"No, it wasn't. To admit this might mean a charge of attempted murder against young Hamilton. Hurriedly he sought some possible explanation, and shook his head. "Oh, I guess it was just an accident. Sheriff."

"No, it wasn't no accident! Saw the bull thing myself from the side walk. Any fool could tell you he hadn't. Buzz tried to kill you, Link. Townsend stepped in and took the slug, trying to get Hamilton's gun. Yuh got a generous streak in yuh, Link," the sheriff said not quite so harshly. "But I'll get Townsend's story so yores ain't gonna hold water, savvy? Doc, is the boy going to live?"

Slater was replacing the instruments in his bag. "If he does it won't be Hamilton's fault. I'm going to camp right here all night and tend Buster."

The Boose County lawman grunted. With a yank at Buzz's manacles he started his prisoner out the door. Helen looked up, started to rise to go to him, but was restrained by Roper Kilgo. The next moment Stephen and Buzz were gone.

For a moment Link Fleming was not sure what he wanted to do. As he stood building a brown-paper cigarette with fingers that trembled, his eyes met those of the girl. Link walked slowly toward her, trying to summon some comforting thing to say.

It was Kilgo who spoke first. "Yuh shouldn't have batted him, Link. I saw there'd be trouble right off. Buzz, he wasn't feelin' right, an'—"

"Wasn't feeling right because he had too much liquor?" Helen interposed with sorrow and accusation blended in her voice. "Who has he been drinking with? Who?" she inquired.

"Wall—reckon him'n Jackpot Mell."

Her angry gesture stopped him. Kilgo stared down at his boots. "Gosh, I'm horse sorry this happened. Anyhow, it's lucky you got somebody you can depend on. Me bein' kind of like yuh—I mean, I can't have a sort of understandin', and I waited two years for yuh to come back, why I guess it's up to me to help you out now. Maybe we better start for the spread, eh?"

The girl drew away the hand he held. In her mind there was a coldness unmistakable, freezing to anyone but the obstinate Kilgo. "Jackpot Mell is one of your closest friends. You claim to be a friend to Buzz and me. You convinced Buzz that it would be foolhardy to go into any irrigation scheme, yet he wrote me last week that you wanted to buy our nine hundred acres. If it is wasteland, and you don't believe in irrigation, how is that?"

"I think you are responsible, some way, for this thing happening, she continued in a voice she tried hard to make steady. "It's very plain, Mr. Kilgo, that you have entirely too much influence over Buzz. You could have stood him just now but you were silent. Or rather, you egged him on. We all know he is—weak!"

"Thank you," she summed up firmly. "It won't be necessary for you to see me home. Good-bye."

During her speech the Box 50 owner simply looked at her in amazement, his mouth opening and closing stupidly. Roper flushed as she ended, and his jaw set with a click. "So Fleming's been fillin' yuh with a pack of lies about me gettin' Buzz drunk?"

"We haven't had time to say yes or no yet," she said.

"You or anyone else?" Link asked.

The other straightened aggressively. "No, yuh been writin' love letters when yuh know damn well Helen and me are—"

She stepped between the stern-faced men. "There are no excuses for assuming that, Mr. Kilgo. Please go."

He waited a moment longer as if undecided whether to refuse. The glint in the man's small, close-set eyes fixed upon Fleming was ominous and vengeful. At last he turned his big back to start away, but paused.

"Fleming, yore the cause of all this. Buzz never liked yuh, and I never liked yuh. That fool irrigation scheme is the craziest thing I've heard of in years. I offered to buy that nine hundred acres o' the triple 'A' just to help out, but as Buzz is hard up for cash. And another thing, he snapped angrily. "I don't care for interfeer' with my private affairs, savvy?"

He hesitated as if debating whether to amplify this. His meaning was clear, however—that Link had come between him and Helen Hamilton. Finally, with a growl, Roper stamped to the lobby door and was gone outside.

For the first time Fleming became aware that darkness was fast descending as the November afternoon slipped into night. Far down the street but visible from where he stood at the lobby window, a knot of curious citizens loitered outside the small adobe jail. They were discussing, no doubt, the incarceration of Buzz Hamilton.

Link went back to the bedroom and talked a moment in low tones to Dr. Slater. The practitioner promised to give Buster Townsend every care, and to remain at his patient's side all during the night. He would send word in the morning how Buster was, or Link would, if possible, come to see his faithful rider.

Returning to the lobby, he stood before Helen, his hat turning slowly between his fingers. "I'd sure like to take you home if you don't mind. But if yuh'd like to alone, sort of."

She dabbed her eyes with a mite of handkerchief and looking up at him, managed a brave, warm smile. "Thank you, Link. I'd be glad if you would go with me. Shall we start now?"

CHAPTER IV.

The ride to the Triple H Ranch was uneventful. Driving the buckboard Buzz had brought to town for his sister's baggage, Fleming made little effort at conversation, feeling that Helen Hamilton preferred to be left to her thoughts. Much had happened to mar the happiness of her home-

Science has discovered why Scott's Emulsion is so much more beneficial than plain Cod Liver Oil. It is so much harder to digest; they must be emulsified in the stomach. We emulsify the oil in our laboratories hence it is ready for almost immediate digestion and assimilation.

coming. Almost before she had an opportunity to greet her brother he became the sheriff's prisoner for attempting to kill a man. If Buster Townsend succumbed to his fury, Buzz would have succeeded, although his fury had been directed at Fleming.

Link turned the couple over to a waddie who appeared, and made ready to mount his buckskin pony which had been joggling behind the buckboard. They stood in a shaft of yellow light from one of the front windows of the ranch house. Some-what awkwardly, he shook hands with the girl and turned to mount.

But she stayed him with a thoughtful question. "You are really serious about building an irrigation dam, aren't you? I mean, you'll try to water your own spread whether other ranchers go in with you or not?"

He nodded slowly. "Maybe everyone else is right on this, and I'm plumb foolish. But I believe in it, Helen. I've learned as much about irrigation as a layman can. Why, I know I'll work."

He grew reflective. "I was sure surprised when Soak Torney said irrigation wouldn't pay here in the county. Soak doesn't really believe that, I'm positive. He's been almost as eager for it as I have. Spent a lot of time makin' those blueprints and stayin' sober enough to talk about it. Yesterday he was all for it. To-day he reverses himself. Somebody talked to Torney, bought him off. Or maybe threatened him." He shook his head. "Right, know who did it or how, but it sure worked. He seems to have disappeared now."

The girl said nothing for a moment as she gazed across the range bathed in early evening moonlight toward the bulk of the Capitan Mountains. "Buzz didn't favor irrigation, ever, did he?"

"Oh, first time I mentioned it to him he was just stand-offish. But I don't care that he got dead set against it. Why?"

She shook her head. "Who has Buzz kept company with lately? Does he spend much time with—Roper Kilgo?"

Fleming moistened the end of his cigarette paper and carefully shaped the smoke. "Course, Roper's about the most important cattlemen around. He's practically boss here. I reckon it's natural for Buzz to kind of snatch up the pearls o' wisdom Kilgo drops about rangin' cows and other important things."

The irony in his tone did not deceive her. On sudden impulse she touched his forearm. "Link, you— you think they'd do something to Buzz for his prison?"

Fleming's face was illumined momentarily as he lit his cigarette. "I guess yuh're askin' for plain truth. Stephen may send Buzz away for awhile if he can. He's set against shoolins, especially in town. Sort of anxious to make an example of anyone who does it. That does it. A mighty good law officer and he figures to keep trouble down by actin' kind of harsh. I'll sure do something 'bout it if I can, but Ames goes his own way. Nobody can talk him out of anything." He was silent a moment, then not even Kilgo could swerve the stern law officer.

The girl nodded, her slender fingers held worriedly to her lips. "Perhaps," she murmured softly. "It will do Buzz good. Oh, I know how he is—he's weak. Buzz is easily led, and I just have a feeling he has come under the influence of someone the last two years, someone very strong-minded. It seems a terrible thing to say, and I don't want my brother put in prison." A shudder escaped her lips.

"But—well, perhaps punishment, a small amount of it, will make a new man of Buzz."

"That's what might happen, and I sure wish it would. I'll do anything

I can for you while he's gone. Helen. I mean like helpin' with the Triple H."

"Thank you." Then thoughtfully: "I shall be in charge of the ranch, shall I? I suppose I can do anything necessary to improve it or keep it up."

About to mount his horse, Fleming paused. He acquiesced inquiringly at the lassie girl standing a few feet away, her face partly visible, partly in shadow. "What do you mean?"

"Why, Buzz and I own nine hundred acres out in the draw, don't we? Useless, barren land. Right next your seventeen hundred acres. How much do you suppose it would cost to dig irrigation ditches all through it, and build a small dam backing up Silver Creek into a sort of lake?"

With a low exclamation he dropped his reins and stepped nearer, to peer startledly down at her. "Do you mean you go against the advice of the only man who really knows irrigation around here—Torney? And the advice of your own brother? And you—well, Kilgo?"

Helen tossed her head. "I don't know. How much do you think it would cost, a small dam backing up Silver Creek into a sort of lake?"

"Oh, I'd say fifteen thousand dollars."

The girl placed a hand at her bosom. "I have the first thousand right here, Link. If the others don't want to—me, we could form a partnership, couldn't we? Now don't you think yuh'd better go home?"

As he rode up to the corral on his own ranch, Fleming still was immersed in thought of the plucky girl's offer. But he frowned as he reflected that she could not realize the weight of public sentiment against them. Bystandees, ever eager to wag their tongues in speculation, would hint that the Star Loop owner had "talked Helen into it."

"Dismissing," he unthinkingly dismissed Helen and turned the animal into the corral. With saddle and bridle in his arms he started toward the ranch house. Yes, everyone would be dead set against it. There would be gossip aplenty that Link had persuaded Helen against her will, free prediction of bankruptcy and ruin.

He stopped suddenly. The saddle fell from his grasp and his hand sought the holstered sgun at his side.

"Don't get tough, Link—it's me, Roper." A short thick figure detached itself from the shadow of the low stoop and Kilgo stepped into a pool of faint moonlight, grinning. "Just wanted a little talk with yuh," he went on easily. "Didn't mean to scare yuh."

"I see." Surprise at the unexpectedness of the visit was masked in his next words. "Why sure, Roper, let's get inside and have a light."

He picked up his saddle again and carried it to the stoop. Leading the way into his four-room dashboard house, he lighted an oil lamp on a centre table of the living room. "Make yourself at home," he invited his guest.

Kilgo appeared to have something on his mind. He stood fingering his cartridge belt while he shifted weight. "Say, Link, this here is kind of a hard thing to talk about. Fact is," he blurted out, "I planned on ridin' home with Helen Hamilton when she came. I mean, it kind of took the wind outta my sails when you were gallivantin' off with her."

"Yuh see, Helen and I—before you bought the Star Loop, I'd known her quite a spell. Always got along together good and all that. Some folks around the county'd tell yuh we was as good as engaged."

"That so? I didn't get quite that impression."

He flashed a quick look. "Course I know you wasn't wise to it. It makes me plumb sore to have interference. Link, it does any man, reckon. I'm known for a guy that don't allow interference. Specially with steers and girls. Yes, we're just about engaged, all right," he repeated significantly.

There was a short pause. "She's mighty nice. Pretty, too. Noticed that myself, first look I had of her."

Kilgo's eyes were evasive. "What I'm gettin' at is, I don't care to have you mix in my personal affairs, Fleming."

There was a truculent edge to his tone that the rancher did not miss. He tossed his hat on the table and rested a thigh over its corner. Swinging his leg idly, he examined Roper with keen, understanding eyes. It was a plain warning, a command that he had just issued, and it rubbed Fleming the wrong way.

"Seems almost like this engagement business is one-sided," he drawled. "However, I haven't any intention arguin' the matrimony question. By the way, Helen and I may go into partnership."

"He started. "What do yuh mean?"

"Why, when folks go into business together, that's called a partnership. That seventeen hundred acres you let me win in a crooked poker game some time back needs water. It's going to be worth a hundred, maybe two hundred an acre some day for alfalfa. Helen'll be in charge of the Triple H now, and she has more advanced ideas than Buzz. We're thinkin' of pooling our resources to put on an irrigation project of our own, seeing you and the others don't believe in good old-fashioned water."

The effect of this announcement was startling. Kilgo's jaw went slack and his eyes rounded in wonder. A low growl seemed to issue from his barrel-like chest, finally to burst from his lips with rage.

"Damn you!" he roared. "Yuh'll never do it!" Suddenly lifting one pudgy hand, he snatched off his sand-colored vest and some of the buttons.

The sharp crack of a rifle was followed instantly by tinkling glass. Some impulse forever unexplained had made Fleming jerk from his seat on the table edge as Roper grabbed his hat. Perhaps he thought the visitor meant to whip out his six-gun—Link could not tell afterward. But the next moment the mass of brown hair on his head flicked sharply. The bullet's speed sent a light breeze along his temple and instinctively he ducked. With a low thud the slug buried itself in the far wall.

"Don't move!"

Brittle with stern tension, Fleming stared down the barrel of his forty-five. "Don't make another signal, understand? Get over there—against that window. If anybody's going to get shot by your slunk assassin, it isn't going to be me."

He was safe from windows, himself. "What the devil yuh talkin' about? Yuh mean to say—"

"Grabbin' your hat was a signal. Some gent outside was waitin' for it. He tried to shoot me. That's what I'm talkin' about, Roper!"

The Box 50 owner's round, red face dulled. If it had not been that Link was covering him, watching his every move with hawk-like vigilance, he would have drawn and slain his host with vengeful speed. But there was no opening, no chance to accomplish it, and after an uncertain twitching of his thick shoulders the man gulped and forced resentment from his face.

"I—uh—goldam it, Link, yuh're all wrong! Say, I wouldn't fix up to murder nobody, man! What the devil—" He waved his hands as if unable to express himself in words. "Come on, let's go after the guy. I'll prove to yuh I didn't—"

The door burst open and Waco Byrne, one of the Star Loop hands, stepped in gripping a sgun in each paw. "Hear shootin', Boss, and glass. What happened?"

"Someone tried to get me, but he missed. Waco, you take two or three of the boys and go after him. He shot from the south; reckon he must have hid behind the tool shed. That gent can't be far off yet. Grab him!"

The door slammed as the puncher hurried to comply. Fleming watched his visitor with sharp suspicion. Finally, concluding it was safe to do so, he holstered his gun. "Thanks for your offer to hunt that dry gulcher, Kilgo, but I guess my men can do the job all right. You in a hurry to go?"

As if muttering his courage, Roper shuffled forward. "Aw, that's a hell-uva way, suspectin' a guy!" he protested. "If I wanted you dead why wouldn't I have done it myself?"

"Because I'm not so slow drawing. For one thing, And one of my men may have seen you come here, so it would be too hard to explain."

Little Helps For This Week

Remember not the sins of your youth, nor my transgressions; According to Thy mercy remember Thou me, for Thy goodness' sake O Lord. Psalm 25:7.

When you're aching burdened heart

My sins lie heavily;

My pardon speak, new peace impart.

In love remember me.

We need to know that our sins are forgiven, and the only way we can know this is to feel that we have the peace of God, that we are so able to trust in the divine compassion and infinite tenderness of our Father we are able to go to Him whenever we commit sin and say at once to Him "Father I have sinned, forgive me." To know we are forgiven it is only necessary to look at our Father's love until it sinks into our heart, to open our soul to Him till He shall pour His love into it, to wait on Him until we find peace, till the weight of responsibility ceases to be an oppressive burden to us, till we can feel that our sins, great as they are, cannot keep us away from our Heavenly Father.

Reports this week stating that Vancouver Lions, entrant in the Pacific coast professional hockey league, would make a tour through the Pass seem to be taking a little for granted. Should they play Kimberley, Coleman will make an effort to have them play here providing that the required guarantee is within reason.
